Truth About Fleas

Even Indoor Animals can get fleas!

- Although fleas are a year-round problem, now is the time to start treating your pets and stop the summer build-up that we so frequently see. Fleas are incredibly tough insects, which can reproduce at an incredible rate. Fleas can consume 1ml of blood per day, so severe infestations on very small animals, especially puppies and kittens, can cause severe anaemia and even death – hard to believe but it does happen every year.
- Fleas also carry a tapeworm, Dipylidium caninum, which is ingested when a host animal grooms a flea off itself. IF YOUR PET HAS FLEAS, IT WILL HAVE WORMS AS WELL
- Treat your pet with Advantage/Revolution.
- Fleas can be brought into your house when you cut the grass or simple through the windows. Treat you Pet even if it is an indoor Pet.

Abby (Mother)
Maine Coon – Born: Dec 2011

Water Rat Cats!

On March 22nd 2013 Abby was rescued from our “Clean up the Feral Program”. She managed to survive in spite of living in absolutely inhumane conditions.

A pregnant Abby was living in an old chicken farm that was infested with water rats.

On April 25th, 2013 at 11pm Abby gave birth to her second litter of 5 healthy beautiful babies.

At 7 months old, Abby was just a kitten herself when she gave birth to her first litter.

If you are interested in seeing Abby and the kittens at their foster home please email us. Full details can be viewed on our website.

We have rescued over 30 Cats/Kittens from this location. Many of them with so server bit that they can not walk. For more information please contact us at info@beamsville4pawrescue.com
